NEW FEATURES COMBINED TO BRING RELIEF

Salvaging of Livestock Important Part of Ottawa's Plan

OTTAWA, July 15.—A broad program for the relief of drought-stricken western farmers and of salvaging the livestock and making provision for future disasters was agreed upon by the government in cabinet meeting yesterday. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, back from a previous study of the prairie problem, laid his recommendations before cabinet and obtained approval for his relief program.

FREE FREIGHT

In brief the program is as follows:

- 1.—Free freight carriage on livestock shipped out on the same basis as grain to the prairie provinces, providing the owner has title to the stock, the proceeds and railroads each contributing one-third.
- 2.—The government to provide feed and fodder for the relief of such livestock as is agreed to be kept in the prairie provinces for breeding and milking purposes.
- 3.—Assistance in procuring in the prairie provinces feed and fodder for livestock which should be killed, this on the same basis as grain.
- 4.—The Dominion government will pay the way for livestock to be shipped from outside the prairie provinces to the prairie provinces, and the owner and takes the risk to a feeding yard and feed for three months. In addition the Dominion will pay half the freight costs on such shipments.

ASSEMBLY AREAS

The department of agriculture is planning to establish within the next three or four months, assembly areas and marketing points at which farmers may take their livestock to be slaughtered and packed with efficiency. These areas will be near water and pasture.

Water conservation and establishment of dug-out and dams, initiated under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act will be continued.

The minister said by this method provision will be made to sustain livestock in future years without resorting to the same existing at present.

FOR ALBERTA

In cooperation with the provinces, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, resulting from the drought, but now largely deserted, will be taken over under the plan proposed by the agricultural department. They will be kept free of stock so that grain may grow and the areas become rehabilitated to provide grazing land for the future. Water will be provided by dams and dug-out construction.

CONTINUE POLICY

For the past year the disaster of the drought area has been looked upon by the federal government as a national emergency and as such has paid 100 per cent relief to those affected. This policy was being continued, the minister said.

"On the whole," Mr. Gardiner said, the situation in the drought areas is worse than it was last year. The area is no larger, the drought is more complete. It is a considerable part of the area which has grown again.

*$5 Millions For U.S. Farm Ousting Plan

WASHINGTON, July 15.—United States Senate today passed a bill authorizing a $5,000,000 out-of-pocket fund to help tenants become farmers through the purchase of land.

The bill aimed the money at approximately $100,000 to combat a grasshopper plague in western prairie.

unabridged in London, said he needed further instruction. The Associated Press said a French cabinet meeting instructed Cohn to approve the plan "in principle" only. The minister, meeting with President Albert Lebrun, decided France would not establish control of Spain's ports and the withdrawal of French troops before the German and Italian forces were secured. The French cabinet also decided the control of ports and evacuation of troops would be more rapid.

THE EARL OF PLYMOUTH

Chairman of the committee, opened the discussion by submitting the compromise proposal. German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop, said:

BASIS FOR DISCUSSION

"On behalf of my government I wish to state here that the British plan can be considered as a basis for discussion. The details of the extensive British document are at present being considered by my government."

Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi said Rome was willing to negotiate on the basis of the British plan, but added that the British plan was not a basis for discussion. The details of the extensive British document are at present being considered by my government.

It was obvious, Von Ribbentrop argued, that the British plan was not a basis for discussion. The details of the extensive British document are at present being considered by my government.

"On the whole," Mr. Gardiner said, the situation in the drought areas is worse than it was last year. The area is no larger, the drought is more complete. It is a considerable part of the area which has grown again.

ENEMY HOSTILE TO BRITAIN'S POLICY IN SPAIN

EDEN MAKES GRAVE SPEECH IN COMMONS

Europe Tottering Near Abyss of War, Parliament Informed

The opposition Liberals, supported Eden.

Attlee argued that Eden was endeavoring to "reconcile" the irreconcilable, contending that the French were making a mere pretence of neutrality.

"There has never been an honest intention to carry out non-intervention," he declared. "All the time you have had Fascist dictators looking at the whole subject and laughing at this course of peace."

The foreign secretary showed anger that the opposition demanded Eden's resignation by this time, the eve of presentation of the compromise proposals to the non-intervention committee today.

Eden asked for endorsement of his plan because he believed that individual men—there are men in the world who are not like this—believe that we are a contribution to European collaboration and therefore a contribution to peace.

LAND FRONTIER

The question remained unanswered whether Britain could win agreement of the other powers to the effort to find a satisfactory formula that would balance all the opposition internationalists.

Attlee objected to the proposal to send immediately land frontier supervision which was control left for negotiation. This, he said, was to France's favor.

"Continued importation of men of foreign troops is a fact," he said. "It is not the support of the 'English Spain'."

Attlee forewarned incidents if the bill were passed. "There were governments," he said, "who have been treated as pariahs."

VESSEL SEIZED

"A reference to today's dispatches by the Government spokesman that the battleship Royal Oak was present in the British Foreign Office was seized in Spanish waters by a Spanish insurgent cruiser."

There were no further reports. Attlee went on, that would not be a ship belonging to the country was captured.

On grounds of belligerent rights would be another instance of breaking down the standards of international law. "In the name of peace they the British government have broken up the standards of law and have actually made not peace but war," he charged.

Danger of the Spanish civil war spreading beyond the Iberian Peninsula would be gravely increased if non-intervention collapsed, the foreign secretary replied.

MAY FAIL

"It may well be," he added, "that we shall be unable to avoid reaching that point, but every nation in Europe reluctant to approach the abyss."

Non-intervention must be kept alive to save Europe from serious threat of conflict, he said. "If the British 'non-intervention' fails," he declared, "you will have unchecked access of material to both sides."

You will have runners, impossible to check, the arrival of large numbers of volunteers. You will go back to the era of grave peril, with institutions as have already marked the war which will have much deeper significance.

"His Majesty's government are convinced that Europe does not want this."

NO QUESTION

In the afternoon, before he challenged the Government to this night debate, Attlee asked Eden if Great Britain would not withdraw its proposal to require the Spanish insurgents as belligerents until after it had been ascertained whether any considerable portion of the Spanish people was behind General Franco's forces, once Franco's foreign adherents were repatriated.

"We do not accept the doctrine of the non-intervention of war," he said. "Eden, I was postponed may be a war averted. It is in the light of that that I ask the house to judge our policy."

Attlee said of Premier Macdonald: "I think he is not to make the Mediterranean in Italian lake."

He added that some had been posted opposite Gibraltar and Britain did not seem to mind.

Attlee and Eden exchanged sarcastic remarks and one of the declarations brought an angry storm of protest from opposition benches.

CAUSES TUMULT

It came when the opposition was more concerned with the question of belligerent rights being granted to "insurgents of whom with their rights do not agree than with the legalities of the situation."

Eden asked and answered in the house, "best and hardest task, which concerned preventing airplanes from reaching Spain. It was proposed he said, to plant observers at all Spanish airports after getting consent from both sides."

Churchill questioned restriction to Great belligerent rights to a "combatant power which controlled hundreds of several hundreds of thousands and possessed the greater part of the Spanish peninsula," had a constituent government and, upon the whole, commanded the law.

"A breach of promise, a breach of faith," he said.

Convention Characterizes Devices as Mechanical Thievery

LONDON, Ont., July 16.—Police association of Ontario in annual session Thursday here today sought legislation for control or abolition of slot machines. The machine was described as "mechanical thievery."

Inspector John Barlow of Ottawa said the best solution to all Ontario's racket was appointment of a chief over all Ontario police provincial and municipal.

Chief R. Manion, Kesteven, Ont., said the interest in breaking the sale, leading and operation of slot machines was "mechanical thievery."

ASSAULT ON POLICE, PLAN, STRIKER SAYS

Pickets Were to Use Camouflaged Banners As Clubs on Patrolmen

CHICAGO, July 16.—A strike leader testifying at the inquest into the deaths in the Memorial Day steel picket, described Thursday an attack along military lines he said was planned to establish a "strong picket line" at Republic Steel Corporation's Great Crossing plant.

Louis Schick, head of the union at the Republic mill and member of the strikers' strategy committee, confirmed the plan in testimony before a coroner's jury of six men.

The union leader said the strike strategists had planned the day before the riot. "It was camouflaged pickets carried on clubs," he said.

He denied, however, that the pickets carried clubs and asserted Joe Weber and other organizers included strikers in the right to pickets they had no guns.

Strikers' line was aroused prior to the meeting which immediately preceded the fight, the witness asserted by the refusal of police to permit as many pickets as the union wanted.

Chief Harold Nash, Guelph, said his city placed a $2,000 license on all slot machines and the trouble ended.
